A Form I-134, Declaration of Financial Support, was filed on your behalf by the supporter named above, and USCIS has reviewed the Form. We cannot confirm that the Form I-134 is sufficient. If you still wish to seek parole into the United States, USCIS must confirm that a Form I-134 filed on your behalf is sufficient as the first step in the process as described on the USCIS website. This means that either the supporter listed above will need to file a new Form I-134 on your behalf in which the supporter demonstrates that they are eligible to be a supporter and that they have sufficient income or financial resources to support you during your stay in the United States, or another individual who is willing to provide you with financial support for the duration of your period of parole in the United States will need to file a new Form I-134 on your behalf. Until USCIS has confirmed the sufficiency of a Form I-134 filed on your behalf, you cannot be considered for parole under this parole processes. You can find more information on the requirements for parole at https://www.uscis.gov/.
Please see the additional information on the back. You will be notified separately about any other cases you filed.
